

Living with atrial fibrillation and not on an anticoagulant (blood thinner)?

You could help researchers discover a better way to prevent stroke.

The LILAC Study is testing an investigational, monthly injectable drug to see if it can safely protect people with atrial fibrillation (also known as AF or AFib) from strokes.

You may be eligible if you:

- ✓ Are 65 years of age or older.
- ✓ Have atrial fibrillation (known as AF or AFib).
- ✓ Are not on an anticoagulant (blood thinner).

Participation is voluntary and you can choose to stop participating at any time.

Talk to your doctor to learn more, or contact a member of the study team:

Name: Pedro Torres

Email: ptorres@pinhurstmedical.com

Phone number: 910-235-3144